Maintenance Help On Rural Highways

Frankfort, Ky., July 20 — The State Department of Highways gave Letcher County maintenance help on 40.4 miles of rural highways during the fiscal year ending June 30, according to a report by George H. Hailey, director of the State's Division of Rural Highways.

The figure includes all mileage obligated for assistance under Kentucky's program of helping to build and maintain county roads. For this purpose, a fund of $5,000,000 from the general highway fund is set up each year and projects are decided upon by representatives of the State Department of Highways and county fiscal courts.

The program is entirely separate from the work of the Department of Rural Highways which builds highways from a fund provided by a two-cent a gallon gasoline tax for rural road purposes.

Mileage involved in Letcher County was under constant patrol by grading equipment which graded a total of 262.5 miles. There were 34.1 miles resurfaced, 19.3 miles ditched and 33 structures repaired. Structures include bridges and culverts.

Statewide totals were 12,820 miles obligated for assistance, 59,525 miles graded, 6,108 miles resurfaced, 6,441 miles patched, and 2,130 structures repaired.

In addition, Hailey's division constructed 89 miles of new grade, surfaced 277 miles of new road and built 483 bridges and culverts.

School Lunch Program Workshop Held At Whitesburg Lunchroom, July 7 - 8th

Meeting at the Whitesburg School lunchroom were school people representing lunchrooms in Letcher County School System, Jenkins City School District and Knott County School System. The purpose of this meeting was a school lunch program workshop held by State School Lunch Supervisors, Misses Laura Moores and Jane Lewis.

The training program, opened by Superintendent Dave L. Craft, proved to be one of the most progressive steps to be made since the originating of the school lunch program. In the forenoon the two very capable supervisors demonstrated the most healthful ways of preparing foods for school lunch purposes. At this time the many observing cooks, lunchroom supervisors, and principals learned how the government surplus foods that had previously been a problem could really be prepared in an appetizing manner. After lunching on the foods prepared, the group, upon suggestion by Professor Kendall Boggs, retired to a classroom for lectures on such subjects as sanitation in the lunchroom, preservation of vitamins, scientific management, and integration of the school lunch into the total school program. Visiting briefly at the meeting was Mr. James Botts, Eastern Kentucky Commodity Supervisor, who enlightened the participants on the food the government was expected to provide for school lunches for the 1954-55 school year.

Mr. Astor Hogg, Letcher County School Lunch Supervisor, was instrumental in scheduling the workshop in our area and was assisted in the preparation for it by Mr. Carlice Breeding, supervisor of the Whitesburg School Lunch, and the cooks at the Whitesburg School.

The State Supervisors spoke of the School Lunch Program as being in its infant stage and that this workshop was a step in its growth. It certainly should be listed as a major step since it left the participants enthusiastically planning for improvements, and eager to try new ideas learned from supervisors and each other.

President Recommends Money For Greenup Dam

President Eisenhower has recommended an appropriation of $2 million for the construction of Greenup Dam. Senator John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.) announced today. The proposed appropriation is included in a supplemental budget estimate submitted to the Congress and will allow work to be started in the current fiscal year. Total cost of the project, which is to be located near Greenup, Kentucky, is estimated at $58 million.

Senator Cooper stated that this dam "is of great importance to Kentucky and the entire Ohio Valley." The Kentucky Republican, together with Senator John Bricker and Congressman Tom Jenkins of Ohio, urged approval of the Greenup fund by the Bureau of the Budget and presented the needs of the Ohio River area in a number of discussions with the White House and executive agencies.

The Ohio River, Senator Cooper pointed out, "carries more freight than any other inland waterway. Construction of Greenup Dam, which will serve one of the most vital industrial areas of America, is part of the long-range improvement program worked out by the Corps of Engineers."

This is the second high-level dam to be recommended by the President this year, the Senator said, the other being the New Cumberland Dam just below Pittsburgh. A third dam is projected at Marietta and the Senator expressed the hope that "we will succeed in obtaining a budget approval from the President for this project next year."

These dams will improve transportation on the Ohio River, Senator Cooper stated, and "will attract new industries to this area, with investments of hundreds of millions of dollars in plant facilities being anticipated. Thus, the project will give a tremendous impetus to the industrialization of the Ohio Valley, providing a strong foundation for prosperity and high employment. It will go far toward helping solve unemployment conditions in the coal producing areas of Eastern Kentucky and West Virginia. Many areas of Kentucky will be directly affected and will derive benefits from this project."

The Greenup Dam will also back up water to a full draft as far as lock number two on the Big Sandy River, Senator Cooper stated, providing the first real step toward canalization of the River. Work on the Big Sandy, the Senator added, "is vital to the welfare of Eastern Kentucky and I shall continue my efforts to secure needed appropriations for its development."

Importance of the Greenup and related dams, Senator Cooper explained, is "clearly shown by the growth in river traffic. From the 22 million tons per year that moved on the river when canalization was completed in 1929, the movement of freight has now reached a total of 64 million tons, twice as much as moves through the Panama Canal." "Conditions are so serious," the Senator added, "that further growth of the Ohio Valley will be impaired unless the program of replacing the obsolete structure is carried on with all possible speed. Of the 46 locks and dams on the river, only two are under 25 years old. 21 are from 25 to 35 years old, while 23 of them have been standing for periods ranging from 35 to 50 years. The overall program calls for replacing the 46 structures with 21 modern, large-pool dams capable of handling the size and flow of modern shipping. The substantial savings in maintenance costs is illustrated by the fact that the annual outlay is $690,000, nearly all of which will be saved when the work is done.

The Greenup project, Senator Cooper explained, envisions a non-navigable gated dam of 32 foot normal lift between pools. The locks will consist of two parallel chambers, the main chamber having dimensions of 110 x 1200 feet and the auxiliary chamber 100 x 600 feet. The pool itself will extend some 62 miles to the existing Gallipolis Dam. Construction is scheduled to be completed in 1961.

HEALTH FOR ALL

"IT ISN'T THE HEAT"

It's the humidity. It's your imagination. Anything but the heat.

Let's stop pretending. Summer heat in most of the United States is just as hot as tropical heat. And it's not an "unusual" summer. It's every summer. It's time we took some lessons from our friends in the tropics—time to learn how to live with the heat we can't explain away.

Let's take a walk through a town that's right on the equator. Notice the way the people walking slowly on the street are dressed? Men in white that reflects the sun's rays, women in long sleeved blouses and cotton sarongs to the ankles—clothes that cover up but fit easily, allowing the air to circulate. Notice that just about everyone wears some sort of head covering, or carries a parasol. Now let's go into this little house almost hidden by green, leafy trees. It's nighttime, and everyone is taking a siesta—if not sleeping, at least lying down for a short rest in the shade. When they get up, they'll have a shower, sluicing themselves with tepid water from that huge pottery jar. They may do this three or four times a day, and in between they'll frequently bathe head and arms.

Dinner time comes late, in the comparative cool of the evening. And it's not a light meal of salad. They eat highly spiced meats, vegetables, rice, and fresh fruit, but few of the heat and energy-giving foods containing fats and sugars.

The cooling properties of hot spices are in the category of hitting yourself on the head with a hammer. It feels so good when you stop. We may not want to adopt that topic custom, but there are some that may well add to our summer comfort: clothes that protect from the sun's heat, yet allow air to circulate on the skin; food that is appetizing, yet provides all the necessary nutrients; frequent bathing in tepid water. The mid-day siesta may not always be practical, but we can walk, not run, on the shady side of the street. We can try to get plenty of rest. Most important, we can admit that it's hot, and adjust to the fact instead of fighting it. (This column is sponsored in the interest of better health)

PINEKNOT IN THE CHESTNUT

"Another thing," said Boyd J. Bolling, reaching over to clip off the radio after we had heard Lowell Thomas' giving out with the evening news, "is the pineknot in the chestnut."

"I was hunting, away back up there in the forks of the yonder, back on Gullett's Ridge, some fifty or sixty years ago, when I ran onto a great old big chestnut tree. Somehow I got to looking at it. Guess it was an odd sort of chestnut. Awful big; and it forked about ten or twelve feet from the ground, each fork being as big as an ordinary tree.

"As I said, I got to noticing it and I seed something queer up there in the forks of the big tree. So I didn't do a thing but off with my shoes and down with my gun and game, and scaled up the tree to see what it was.

"Well, sir, I was never as surprised in my life. For there, growing square through the trunk of that big tree was a sound pineknot; a black pineknot; and there was not a black pine growing in miles of the place, nor, as far as I know, ever had been.

"The pineknot was pointing exactly east and west. I know because I always packed a little pocket compass and I took it out and made the test.

"I was puzzled. When I got back in the settlement I told others what I'd found; and I learned that some of my neighbors had made the discovery long before. A lot of them had already carried out a prospecting on Gullett's Ridge. You know, old Swift is said to have mentioned a pineknot, pointing east and west, in his journal, which would lead to his silver mine.

"After I'd took my mattock and dug around some, near the old chestnut, without finding anything, Samp Maggard went back up there, set up a camp, and grubbed the chestnut. But if he found anything nobody ever knew anything about it. But that was funny; that pineknot being in the chestnut tree, miles from where any pine grewed. I've thought a lot about it."

"For Thou art my hope, O Lord, God; Thou art my trust from my youth."

—Psalm 71:5.

I never could have borne life's burden, Through all the many weary years, Had not my God been ever near, To hear my prayer, and see my tears.

So oft I sank beneath the load, That daily I had to bear, But when I prayed and trusted God, I always found Him near.

How true the words, "Thou art my hope"

The Lord has been my stay, Through all the trials of life; He was with me all the way.

When all my strength and hope seemed gone, And I sank beneath the load, His guiding hand would lead me up, Lead me along the narrow road.

Thou art my hope my only hope, My trust from my youth, I know your ways are always best, Your ways are right and truth.

Life's rugged pathway soon will end, And my weary soul will rest, He who led me all these years, I know will own and bless.

And, at the ending of the way Perhaps I'll understand Why life has been so hard for me, While traveling through this land.

Thou art my hope, O Lord God, In Thee alone I trust, Let my tired soul rest in peace, When my body returns to dust.

—Rebecca Jones.

The post card was addressed to "Social Security, D. C." The message read: "My mother is 89 years old and has been sick for a long time. I cannot leave her to see if she can get social security so please write and let me know if she is entitled to a pension."

As is the practice in this type of case, the field representative was asked to make a personal contact. The address was rural delivery but of the county seat. Following directions, the representative soon found himself off the paved highway, on an unpaved road with fifteen miles ahead of him before he would reach the address of Mary Wilson and her mother.

As the field representative had suspected, the two of them were alone—living in a small frame house, badly in need of repair. There was a well-tended garden, and some chickens were seen about the place; otherwise, all appearances indicated that the need for assistance was very real.

The field representative quickly learned that the mother had never worked under social security and explained that she was not entitled to benefits. The daughter said, "It would not take much for us as we own this place and with the garden and chickens we could get by with a few dollars each month." Then, speaking more to herself than to the field representative, she remarked, "if only I could go back to the cannery for a few weeks."

Further questioning developed the fact that she had worked long enough at the cannery to be insured and that she had already attained the age of 65. Her claim was taken and as a result she is receiving a social security payment each month.

Mary Wilson's 2-cent investment in a post card brought her tremendous dividends.

FISHING IS FUN

By CHARLIE BOWERS
Fisheries Biologist
Department of Fish and Wildlife
Resources Frankfort, Ky.

WHEN YOU WISH TO HAVE GOOD FUN AND TO HARVEST SOME OF THE BEST EATING FISH FOR MR. BLUEGILL—

I am a fisherman. When the warm winds of spring start the green things popping from the soil, a chemical change takes place deep south in the bone that turns me into a worm digging, plug buying, reel oiling bundle of confined energy that knows no peace until suitable periods of the cure are indulged in. I have always been the fisher for back as I can remember.

When I was a kid, back in El Paso, Texas, Dad and I used to fish the drainage ditches. We fished hard for a mess of six and seven inch bluegills. We caught as many as ten eating size fish in one afternoon's fishing. We were more than satisfied. Fishing water is scarce out there and the fish we caught cost us dearly in effort and travel time. Many times our speedometer clicked over a hundred miles to get six or eight bluegills for the frying pan.

From the time I was accepted as a fisheries biologist in Kentucky, my fishing pains have ample cure. Here I work five days a week with fish, and then fish for them on week ends. My fishing has become more varied in this land of plenty. I have caught goodly numbers of largemouth, smallmouth, Kentucky yellow and white bass, drum, catfish, crappie, longear sunfish, shell-crackers and others; but my first love is still best—bluegills.

Kentucky has more and better bluegill fishing than I have ever seen anywhere. No matter where I have been in the State, it was but a matter of minutes to travel to a good bluegill hole.

In my work with fishermen and pond owners I have met numerous people who look on the bluegill as an inferior fish, not worthy of the attention of good fishermen. Of course, I most violently disagree with this opinion, but I could not tell these people they were wrong, because every fisherman has his own idea of fun and how he achieves his fun through fishing is strictly his own business.

In my opinion the bluegill is one of the most determined fighters, and best eating fish to be found in fresh water. He takes the back seat to no other fish in his size class, and on light tackle one does not ever have to apologize for his size.

If you will allow a naturalized Kentuckian, I received my papers when I married a Kentucky girl last year) to spout off, I would like to tell you how I have my fun bluegill fishing. By the way, I do practically all my fishing with my wife who is a crack-jack fisherman.

Cane poles and flyrods are just the ticket for bluegills. I like the flyrod and Martha is partial to the cane pole. She has a collapsible twelve foot pole that is a beauty. We use about three feet of two or four pound test leader, and a number 8 Eagle Claw Hook (Pattern 214) but any number 6 or 8 hook is all right as long as it is good and sharp. In a lake or pond there is no need for a sinker or cork, unless you are using a bait that won't go down, and we seldom do for bluegill.

For bait just about any kind of bug, larvae or worm will do, but crickets, roaches, shrimp and angle worms are the most popular. Martha likes to use fresh white bread wadded into pea size balls, especially in late summer. The most consistent bluegill getter I know of is the angle or fishing worm.

I hook my worm once

Editor's Note: This is one in a series on Fishing in Kentucky. They are prepared by Charlie Bowers, who has fished about every stream and lake in the State. Other articles will follow and will be carried in this column under "Fishing is Fun."

through the middle and let both ends hang. When you throw him out he wiggles and curls just like a free worm. Bluegills don't usually resist such a temptation.

If you have never tried fishing without a sinker or cork, it would be quite an experience for you. You have to watch your line, and when it down to bait besides making an unnatural splash, I don't know of any better fish enticement than a nice juicy worm slowly drifting down through the water advertising "fresh meal" with every wiggle and curl. Besides this, bluegills lose much of their caution when there is no sinker drag as they take the bait, and so they gulp rather than nibble. There will be a few swallowed hooks but most of them can be hooked in the mouth after you get on to the method.

Martha and I fish from the bank, or boat, whichever strikes our fancy. We usually hunt around the bank until we can find a spawn bed, and fish there. A spawn bed is easily recognized by the saucer shaped holes eight to twelve inches in diameter fanned out in the bottom sand or mud, usually in water one to three feet deep. Each one of these saucers is fanned out and protected by one male bluegill. The biggest males fan their nest in the best locations in the summer and keep all other males away. Each one will stay with the nest until he can entice a female to lay her eggs in his nest and then he hatches the brood and watches over it until the young leave the nest. As soon as one male is through with a nest another moves in, until late in the summer and early fall only the small ones are nesting. If you catch one male another will have the nest the next day. The bluegill spawn in colonies, so if you find a spawn bed you can catch a good string of fish from that one spot, usually. Don't worry about depleting the stock. One female has up to fifteen thousand young, so it will more than replace all you can catch.

If we can't find a spawn bed, we fish near streams, logs, weed patches or anything that might provide protection for a bluegill. If we don't get a bite in ten or fifteen minutes we move. We are patient in waiting for the fish to come to us. Usually we end up with twenty to forty hand sized bluegills.

Here is a note for the bass fisherman. If you want your bass to be a beauty, use a shape possible, it would be wise to turn bluegill fisherman yourself once in a while. The bluegill is the best bass food we know of, for small as it is good and sharp. In a lake or pond there is no need for a sinker or cork, unless you are using a bait that won't go down, and we seldom do for bluegill.

For bait just about any kind of bug, larvae or worm will do, but crickets, roaches, shrimp and angle worms are the most popular. Martha likes to use fresh white bread wadded into pea size balls, especially in late summer. The most consistent bluegill getter I know of is the angle or fishing worm.

leaving the head, backbone and entrails to throw away. The bluegill filets are washed and patted dry with a paper towel, then put in a paper sack with a cup of flour and one half teaspoon salt in it. After I shake the flours out of the sack, the floured filets are taken out and put in a small bowl of beaten egg and turned over and over until coated with egg. These gooey filets are then gently placed in another sack with bread crumbs in it, and again shaken before being fried. The final product is french fried the few minutes it takes to cook bluegill filets, and served. We allow at least five or six fish per person. Man! That is eating at its best.

In the preceding thousand or so words I have tried to tell you what constitutes a whale of a lot of fun for me. You may not agree with me at all, but if a few of you can find something in this article to help you enjoy fishing more, I will be happy.

CHRYSLER DEALERS REPORT 3,086 CARS DELIVERED TO BUYERS JULY 1-10

Detroit, Mich. July 19—All 1954 Chrysler sales marks fell during the first 10 days of July with dealers delivering 3,086 cars to owners, reports E. M. Braden, general sales manager, Chrysler Division, Chrysler Corporation.

This is an increase of 23.4 per cent over sales for the previous 10-day period.

"Chrysler dealers report they delivered 3,086 cars to buyers between July 1 and July 10, exceeding all previous 10-day sales periods for the 1954 model year," Braden said.

He said Chrysler's increasing sales bear out the general business upswing reported by Division sales executives at a series of meetings which covered 69 metropolitan U. S. markets. Analysis of reports from Chrysler dealers as to the business situation in their local areas show that business is improving and indicates that sales will be better for the last six months of the year than was anticipated.

"Evidence of this is shown by the fact that Chrysler sales for the past 30 days climbed steadily upward," Braden said. "Much of this improvement, we believe, is due to our accelerated demonstration program which shows one sale for every 12 demonstrations of the 255-horsepower engine, full-time power steering, fully automatic Power Flite transmission and power brakes."

Braden backed up his sales optimism by citing customer delivery records of the past 30 days which show a steady increase for the periods ending June 20, June 30 and July 10. Sales were 2,424 cars, 2,501 and 3,086 cars respectively, he said.

"Chrysler dealers are doing an increasingly better job of market penetration as can be seen by the fact that in 1952 Chrysler was eleventh in sales in 1953 tenth, and this year in ninth place," Braden said. "We expect to continue the trend toward increased penetration of the higher-price market by Chrysler in view of the fact that Chrysler sales of V-8's are now at the highest percentage in the Division's history."

He said the gains are due largely to the Division's organizational sales re-organization program by which the sales staff has been strengthened with men who have successfully operated their own business and proven their selling ability. As a result of this program, he said, Chrysler sales executives and Chrysler dealers are now geared to the type of retail-level hand selling necessary to keep production lines operating at volume.

Big Turnout of Voters Is Best Chance For Victory Says Jas Wine

Pikeville, Ky. — Democratic Congressional Candidate James Wine stated here this week that his best chance for victory in the August primary lay in a big turnout of voters.

Wine, seeking the nomination for the House seat from Kentucky's Seventh Congressional District, declared that he had received the good wishes of Eastern Kentuckians in all walks of life in each of the 13 counties in the district.

"I appreciate their good wishes and I shall do everything I can to keep them, he added, 'I have toured the 13 counties in this district as thoroughly as any man could, and I feel that I can get out and vote on election day.'

Wine declared that he was opposed by a "well-oiled machine" which could command scores of cars, workers and the offer of temporary jobs to aid in getting out the vote for his opponent.

"This is my first campaign for office," he said, "and I do not have the organization behind me. I do have the good wishes of a great army of good people on whom I am counting to help me win."

"I'll be new in Congress," Wine said. "But I'll be fresh enough to holler for Eastern Kentucky. Nobody has ever hollered for anything for us in Washington. If they did, they never hollered loud and long enough to be heard, or they put politics first and our welfare second. We've been quiet, quiet and polite too long."

Wine continued, "It's time we started hollering loud and put the people first." The 13 counties in the Seventh District are—Pike, Floyd, Knott, Martin, Johnson, Mingo, Letcher, Perry, Breathitt, Lee, Wolfe, Morgan and Elliott.

There will be one or more voting places in each county in the state, and the local county referendum committee will help in determining the number of voting places in each county. This will probably be determined by the size of the county and its importance insofar as the dairy industry is concerned. The Commission's next meeting will be on July 21, at which time final rules and regulations for conducting the referendum will be adopted. Temporary headquarters for the Commission will be at 640 Herr Lane, Louisville, Ky. John Moser, Oldham county dairy farmer, was elected chairman of the group, and H. A. Bradford, Fleming county dairy farmer, is vice-chairman.

Two-Thirds Own Cars One-Half TV Sets

Says Survey Report

In the first half of 1954, two-thirds of all American families own one or more automobiles and half of all families have television sets, according to the Federal Reserve Board survey of consumer finances conducted by the University of Michigan.
More than half of all American non-farm families own their own homes with more than 50 percent of them being free of mortgage debt. These are the people who this year will spend many millions of dollars in remodeling and modernizing their homes.

Among the first places that most definitely date the house are the kitchen and the bathroom. But these are the rooms that are perhaps the easiest of all to modernize to make them as attractive as similar rooms in the latest houses on any street in the United States.

Such materials as prefabricated wallpanels that now come in a wide variety of patterns, ranging from plain colors to lined and tile patterns and even marble and woodgrain, are designed for the handy man who wants to do his own modernizing work.

By following the simple directions supplied with the material and the special adhesives, any man that is handy with the simple carpenter tools can refinish the walls and ceiling of his kitchen and bathroom with this modern hardboard material.

Prefinished wall panels, which have a factory-applied baked enamel surface, put an end to future redecorating costs and one of the most attractive features of this material is its ease of cleaning, a feature that will appeal to any housewife.

THE PARSON SAYS:

E. Hampton Barnette

Way back, when people use to visit each other there were happy times in every community. Today the visiting is done in little clicks, clans, and church-related groups. It was a bad day for us when the old fashioned visiting went in a hole and pulled the hole in after it.

I have made an average of twenty visits a week for many years, and do not now, and never did, visit only one group of people. I have climbed ladders into people's homes, I have climbed in at the windows, and have had people meet me holding vicious dogs to keep them from chewing up my Methodist calves. I go in and out among the poorest people, and often carry them something to eat or wear. I have visited over the plush carpets and in the homes of the rich. But thank the Good Lord, I have found a very gracious welcome wherever I have visited.

At least once in my lifetime I heard the statement: "We just don't visit in this neighborhood." They need to tell me that, for I can tell when I often ask a neighbor who lives next door, and have been told, "Why My Lord, I don't know." I think I would try to know for my own safety to say the least about it. When visiting passes out, friendship goes with it.

I imagine I have been bowled over a thousand times with the statement: "I work all week, and Sunday is the only day I have to myself, so I can't go to church on Sunday." Now truly analyze that common excuse to keep from doing one's duty at his church. All week he works for himself, right? Yes, to be sure. When Sunday comes he also says this is my day for my poor old tired self. I want to repair my flesh and bones. Now you are getting to the bitter root of it. That person thinks more of his bones and his flesh than he does his spirit and soul, for he would rather rest his flesh than go to the church and rest his weary sinful soul before the altar of God's church. I have a book in my study many people should read, it is titled: "Can These Bones Live?"

Obituary ofMrs. John Adams

Early Monday morning, July 5th, before the sun had made its usual appearance from behind these hills which tower above us and surround us, and while all was quiet and still in the neighborhood, God dispatched his Angel from heaven to come here below to the little humble home of Brother John Adams and took from their embrace the best earthly friend that his family will ever know. The good Lord chose to call for Sister Ella Adams and she in turn answered him and took the wings of death and flew away to be with the Lord and loved ones in eternity forever.

Ella Back Adams was born into the home of the late Dave Back and Phoebe Lewis Back on July 22, 1893 near Blackey, Kentucky. Deceased this life near six o'clock a. m., July 5, 1954, at the age of 61 years. At the age of 14 she first met her husband, John Adams, and three years later they were happily married and began their first housekeeping at the foot of the Little Hill which will claim her mortal remains until the resurrection of the dead. To them were born three children, Vincent Adams of Martin, Ky., Bramble Adams of Clear Springs, Indiana, and Mrs. Inez Chittendon of Whitesburg. Sister Ella was blessed to live to see all her children grown and making their own way in this life. She sought the guidance of the Saviour in this life many years ago. It was the writer's privilege to hear her make a confession of the faith that she had in the Lord Jesus Christ and also my privilege to baptize her into the fellowship of the Church. Her life in this world should forever be an example for all of us. Surely we can see her good works, the humble christian spirit which she displayed in this life, and glorify our God in heaven.

Sister Adams had been in failing health for several years, having had five major operations within the last few years. Brother Adams and her children did all they could to have her health restored but, alas, it was in vain. She became seriously stricken nearly two months ago, and all human effort to relieve her of her illness was in vain. No one ever bore their afflictions with more patience than she. She seemed to have placed her entire trust in the never failing hands of her Saviour and she told Aunt Mat just a few days before she died that she was going to heaven; there was nothing in her way. We truly believe that her passing from this life, although a great loss to us, is her eternal gain. No one could have been more devoted to her children and husband than Sister Adams. She would have willingly given her life if necessary for Brother Adams or the children.

The Adams family believed in the old adage, "all for one and one for all." May God help us to live more for each other in the years which lie ahead of us. May we all be fellow travelers together, sharing our joys and sorrows with one another. Today in this great hour of sorrow we pray the benediction of God upon this bereaved family, the children, the grandchildren, the brothers, Bryan Back and Howard Ison, and sister, Dora Cole, and all the relatives of Sister Adams. Likewise we invoke the blessings of God upon Aunt Mat, Aunt Sally, Steve and Luther for their loyalty and help during this trying time. God bless them forever. Let us all look to him who is able to hold us up. Remember that God cannot fail. He is a friend that will never forsake us. He will relieve us of all our burdens if we trust him. May we place our trembling hands in his and he will reverently lead us by the waters of life where we can forever rest with him in that land that knows no sickness, death or sorrow. There we shall clasp glad hands again and enjoy the fellowship of the Lord and loved ones forever.

Obituary of T. S. Haymond

Fairmont, W. Va. — Final rites were held in Hattiesburg, Miss. for Thomas S. Haymond, former local coal man and one-time member of the National Bituminous Coal Commission, who died in a hospital there after a brief illness with pneumonia. Col. Haymond, who was 67, had been in failing health for several months but became seriously ill only three days before his death.

Born in this city, he was the son of the late Judge and Mrs. Alpheus F. Haymond. He attended schools here and later he went to several technical schools. For many years he was connected with the Fairmont Coal Co., predecessor of the Consolidation Coal Co. and later joined the coal interests of the late John A. Clark.

Around 1911, he moved to Kentucky with the Elkhorn Coal Company, of which the late George W. Fleming was then president and in which the late Senator Clarence W. Watson had an interest. He was affiliated with that company, except for his service on the NBCC in Washington, until his retirement two years ago, when he moved to Hattiesburg.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Hattie Haymond, a son, Alpheus F. Haymond, of Fairmont, and two daughters, Mrs. Laura Lee Brice and Isabella M. Haymond, both of New York City. A son, John, is deceased. There are two grandchildren, John Haymond Jr., who made his home with Col. Haymond, and Mary Louise Haymond, of Louisville, Ky. A number of nieces and nephews also survive, many of them in this section.

Deceased was of a family of seven boys and two girls. He was a brother of the late Judge William S. Haymond, Lindsay Haymond; husband of Mrs. Allie Comeford Haymond; Mrs. Mary Virginia Hill; Mrs. Lucy Dering of Morgantown; Mrs. Helen Peddicord; Mrs. Laura Jackson, who was the widow of Sam Jackson; and Lily and Jewel Haymond. All are deceased.

Was Prominent Mason Col. Haymond was prominent in Masonic circles and held a 33rd degree. He was affiliated with various branches of the Masonic order and also was a member of the B. P. O. Elks.

Col. Haymond was one of the children of the late Judge Alpheus F. and Marie Frances Hoggess Haymond. His father served in the Virginia Legislature and although he opposed the secession of that state at the time of the Civil War, he joined the Confederate Army and served in the brigade of Gen. Jubal Early in the corps commanded originally by Gen. Thomas Jonathan (Stonewall) Jackson.

Judge Haymond was one of the first elected to the new Supreme Court of West Virginia after the constitution of 1877 was adopted, having earlier had his right to practice restored by the first special act of the 1868 Legislature.

Col. Haymond also was a direct descendant of John Haymond, who came from England in 1734 and of Major William Haymond, who served with Gen. Braddock and Gen. Forbes in the French and Indian War and later with George Washington in the Revolution. Col. Haymond's grandfather, Thos. S. Haymond, for whom he was named, was a member of Congress from Virginia.

During his residence in Fairmont, Col. Haymond was president of the Fairmont baseball club in the old Pennsylvania-West Virginia league and his interest in sports continued throughout the years. Although he had resided away from Fairmont for more than two score years, Col. Haymond frequently visited here until after his removal from Kentucky to Mississippi.

She's worried about high taxes, too!

Susie doesn't pay taxes exactly, but she's worried about the people who do.

You see, most taxpayers love children—even have kids of their own. But when it comes to voting for the new school or additional school facilities—well, their pocketbooks sort of get the best of them, and they vote "no."

At a time when schools all over America are overcrowded—many beyond the danger point—such penny-wise, pound-foolishness only adds to the seriousness of this problem.

As taxpayers, we must think about our children and their futures. Look into the problem of overcrowded schools. And consider this fact—in the next few years these schools will have to take care of even more children!

Think, too, about the additional teachers that will be needed to teach these children.

And finally, think what an important part schools and teachers play in keeping America strong and free. Isn't that worth all the taxes you pay—maybe even a little bit more?

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
 As I drive over the country I see many gardens with beautiful Rhubarb in them, and I wonder if you folks are enjoying eating that rhubarb as much as I do when I can get my hands on a few stalks.

A good pie made from it is a good way to use it.

RHUBARB PIE:
 Crust: 8 or 9 inch double crust.

1-2 cups flour
 1-2 teaspoon salt
 1-2 cup vegetable fat
 4 tablespoons cold water.
 1. Sift flour and salt into cold fat with pastry blender or two knives until pieces are size of peas.

2. Add cold water and stir until moist. Form two balls and chill in refrigerator a few minutes.

3. Roll between wax paper and line bottom of pie pan.

RHUBARB PIE FILLING
 3 cups rhubarb
 2 cups sugar
 2 tablespoons flour
 2 tablespoons butter
 1 egg
 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg.

Cut rhubarb in short lengths, and pit in unbaked shell. Mix sugar, flour, and nutmeg. Beat egg and add to sugar mixture. Spread over rhubarb. Dot with butter. Add top crust. Bake in a 450 degree F oven 10 minutes—Reduce heat to 350 degree F and make 30 minutes more.

Top with Whipped cream. There will be a county 4-H club picnic on Pine Mountain, August 21, at 10:30 slow time. You'll hear more about it later.

 FARM SAFETY

Working on a farm is the most dangerous occupation a man can engage in, according to statistics compiled by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and reported by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

The number of deaths of farm workers due to accidents is greater than in any other industry, and serious accidents are nearly 65 times as many as the fatalities.

The shocking records show the following number of fatal accidents in 1963: agriculture, 2,800; construction, 2,500; manufacturing, 2,400; trade and transportation, 1,400 each; and wells, 800, and public utilities, 300.

Seven hundred of the fatal farm accidents involved wheel tractors and one-third of them involved persons under 20 years of age. One case out of every 10 was a child under 5 years.

The 11th National Farm Safety Week, July 25-31, is sponsored by the National Safety Council and the United States Department of Agriculture for the purpose of emphasizing the importance of safety consciousness among farmers and their families.

STORING ONIONS
 Two important points should be kept in mind in storing onions for winter.

First, onions are a cool weather crop and they do most of their growing when the nights are cold and cool. They quit growing when the weather gets hot.

Second: onions should not be over-mature when harvested. They may be considered mature when the necks begin to get limber or when tops start to go down. Onions pulled at this time keep better than when pulled later.

Immediately after onions are pulled they should be taken to a shady, airy place and they are left to dry in the garden or they are inviting trouble in storage because the sun damages them.

Pulled onions can be handled in any of these ways:

1. Place the tops together in bunches of one dozen or so, and hang them where air circulates freely. When they have dried thoroughly take them down, rub the necks off and store the onions in bags or baskets so air will go through them. Or leave them in bunches and pick them off as they are needed.

2. The tops may be cut off, leaving one inch of step on them, put in a slatted box for drying. Later when dry rub the necks off and store in storage containers in a place that is airy and dry at a temperature close to 40 degrees.

Standard onion crates make excellent containers for drying and for all winter storing.

However, trays may be made of 1 by 4 inch lumber with a chicken wire bottom. Set one inch wooden posts inside the corners. Make the posts long enough to be three inches higher than the sides of the crate so that when the crates are set one on top of another a three-inch crack is left for ventilation.

Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Adams of Hazard attended the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Adams on Sunday afternoon at the Harlan Baptist Church at 4:30. Mrs. Adams is the former Miss Mary Jane Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scott, Mound Street, Harlan. She is a graduate of Center College. Mr. Adams is a graduate of Center College and is now a sophomore at the University of Louisville Medical School.

Fifteen Good Rules Listed For Safety On The Farm

A mental alertness; a safety consciousness; the ability to recognize hazards and a determination to eliminate them; and efficiency in all farm operations—are more essential to safety in agriculture than any rules or regulations. However, for the sake of brevity, here are 15 good rules, which, if followed will help reduce the toll of farm accidents:

1. Keep walkways and steps in good repair, unobstructed and well lighted.

2. Keep ladders in good repair and easily accessible in case of emergency.

3. Always stop a machine before unclogging, oiling, or adjusting it. Keep all machine guards and safety devices in place.

4. Don't wear loose and floppy clothes around machinery.

5. Start tractors smoothly and turn corners slowly—avoid ditch banks and soft ground—always hitch to the drawbar.

6. Speak to animals when approaching them. Keep THEM calm by acting with calm self-assurance YOURSELF.

7. Always keep bulls in safe bull pens. Never handle bulls unless they are properly restrained.

8. Know and obey all traffic laws. Stop driving if you get sleepy. Never ride with a driver who has had a "drink".

9. Keep your back straight and lift heavy loads with your leg muscles. Don't try to lift anything that is too heavy for you.

10. Use the right tools for the job—make sure they are in good condition—keep them in a safe place.

11. Give prompt attention to even minor injuries.

12. Keep guns unloaded except when actually using them. Treat every gun as though it WERE loaded. And NEVER aim at anything you don't want to shoot.

13. Don't use kerosene to start fires. Pour kerosene or gasoline outdoors to prevent the accumulation of treacherous vapors. Dry clean outdoors.

14. Don't smoke around the barn.

15. Never swim alone. Never dive into water without first determining the depth. And be careful around boats of any kind—never stand up in small boats.

Safety Hints

(by Lovell Williams)

Did you know that "Safety Is Good Business"? Yes, friends, Safety is one of the biggest businesses in the world. Now, you ask the question why?

If your business was projected toward life saving, why wouldn't it be the biggest business in the world. Americans everywhere are awakening to the continuing menace of fatal and crippling automobile accidents which have made a death trap of the Nation's streets and highways.

In our community, too, there are civic-minded people who will welcome our program. If you are that person let us know because the Letcher County Safety Bureau needs you so does that neighbor, whether you know him or not, his or her life, too, are at stake as they drive.

Now, the Safety Program, has as part of its program, what we call A Five Point Program. This Five Point Program consists of Driver Education, Bicycle Safety, Motor Vehicle Inspection, Driver Licensing and Pedestrian Safety and Traffic Control.

In this Five Point Program we need some one to represent each point, that is if we get the job done. So if you are interested in helping, write to "Safety" Whitesburg, Ky., or Phone 2477.

Letcher County has only had one fatal accident this year so far, which occurred in the county, let's keep our county clear by driving with caution, and being alert at the wheel at all times. Leave drinking off when driving. Drive at a safe speed 55MPH on open highways, and obey all traffic signs and regulations.

Maximum Fines

Would Total $28,800

Frankfort, Ky., July 9. — If two Reelfoot Lake fish dealers are convicted of all charges filed against them in their trial in Federal Court at Paducah on October 25 and are fined the maximum penalty, their fines will total $28,800, Billy Jones, U. S. Assistant Attorney at Louisville, says.

Defendants in the suit filed by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service are Marvin Hayes, Hayes Fish Company, Samburg, Tenn., and Elbert T. Spicer, operator of Spicer Fish Company, Hornbeak, Tenn. Hayes was named in 108 counts involving shipments of crappie, sun-fish and striped yellow bass from Fulton, Ky., to St. Louis and Chicago fish houses. Spicer was named in 36 similar counts. In addition to the fines each could carry a prison sentence of three months. Should the maximum penalties be imposed, the cases comprise the largest in the history of law enforcement by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the law enforcement divisions of Kentucky and Tennessee.

Jones made the announcement of the trials after a conference on June 9 with William Davis, Regional Supervisor of Enforcement for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, and his assistant, Carl Thomas; and Fred Williams, Chief of Enforcement for the Tennessee Game and Fish Commission.

Charges against the Tennesseans resulted after State and Federal enforcement officers intercepted shipments of crappie in St. Louis from both the Hayes and Spicer Companies. According to Williams, only a small number of the crappie were tagged in accordance with Tennessee law. In addition, a Federal game management agent in St. Louis reported an illegal shipment of black bass, a violation of Federal law.

Williams, Hammond, Soaper and other officers also turned over other evidence to the U. S. Attorney.

YOU can see for yourself the gay and gorgeous styling that's sure to be the fresh note next year, too.

And you can easily learn that here is power a-plenty—the highest V8 power, Series for Series, in the annals of Buick history.

But what you can never know, till you try it yourself, is the feel of a Buick in motion.

It's a ride as precision-soft and firm as only coiled steel can make it.

Yes, coil springs on all four wheels. And a full-length torque-tube drive for true tracking. And a massive X-braced frame for solid steadiness. And specially calibrated shock absorbers, V-braced struts, wide-rim wheels, a unique front-end geometry—plus a host of other betterments too numerous to mention.

You feel the result of this advanced engineering every mile you drive—in what is literally and figuratively a Million Dollar Ride.

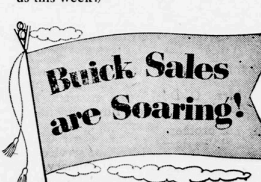

You feel it in the superb and buoyant cradling. You feel it in the serene leanness of your going over ruts and ridges. You feel it in the precise snubbing of jars and jounces. You feel it in a new kind of steadiness, handling ease, curve control.

Only thing for you to do, we believe, is to come try this miracle of motion—and we'll be glad to oblige.

That way you'll also learn firsthand about the style, the power, and the value that have made Buick such a best-selling success this year. For Buick today is out-selling all other cars in America except two of the so-called "low-price three."

Sunday School Lesson

International Uniform Series
July 18, 1954
—by—
Rev. C. A. Lingle, Jr.
July 25, 1954
Lesson Verses: Psalms 46:10; Isaiah 40: 30-31; Luke 11:1-13; Philippians 4:6-7; Hebrews 4:14-16. (To be read and studied in your Bibles).
Printed Scriptures: Luke 11:1-3; Philippians 4:6-7.

In continuing our studies based upon Christian Growth it was inevitable that we should turn our thoughts to the practice of prayer. As the atmosphere that we breathe is vital to physical life; so is prayer vital to spiritual life. In prayer we commune with God and our spirits grow in spiritual fellowship.

In the first portion of our printed scripture, Jesus was praying. After he had finished one of his disciples asked that they be taught to pray. Notice that the request is not how to pray. They did not need a method or a set group of rules to follow. They wanted the Spirit of prayer. The methods of prayer are always secondary. Your words may be weak and faltering but the Spirit may be strong. The most eloquent of words may leave you cold and lifeless. Jesus looks into the heart of prayer and presents to us the true meaning of prayer with real spiritual communion. There must be an attitude of decency with confession and repentance, but there must also be expectancy. God can and does answer prayer, can we do less than expect an answer? Should we enter into prayer with doubts that prayer becomes no prayer at all, but a group of words with no meaning.

Paul, following in our Lord's example, tells the Philippians to pray with certain attitudes not with specific words. We are to enter into prayer free from wrong and in peace with God and our fellowman. We are to live in prayer, not making prayer an isolated event in our lives but prayerful in everything. We must pray in Spirit of Thanksgiving, without ceasing, asking God's Will, and resting in confidence.

Prayer is a means of growth. We must use it in becoming better Christians. The story is told that after Stonewall Jackson was elected a Deacon in the Church that he was asked to lead the Congregation in prayer. He failed completely. His words wouldn't come and all that he could do was stammer. The Pastor apologized for having called on him but Jackson requested that he call on him often that he might grow in the Grace of Prayer.

Growth in Prayer practice is growth in likeness of Jesus Christ.

Sen. John S. Cooper Reports From Washington

SCHOOL BILL APPROVED.
—It is a real pleasure to be able to report that the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare has approved the emergency school construction bill which I proposed. This bill would authorize the expenditure of $600 million for a two-year period to help the states pay for the construction of school buildings. The formula for the allocation of money is so worked out that the poorer states will receive a greater proportionate share of aid and Kentucky would be qualified for approximately $8 million per year.

Extensive hearings on this and related bills were held by the Education Subcommittee, of which I am Chairman, and it was brought out very clearly that the shortage of school buildings in this country is well over $10 billion. Now the bill is before the Senate for action and I am hopeful that the Administration will support me in securing passage before Congress adjourns.

ANOTHER TAX REDUCTION. — The fourth tax reduction since the inauguration of President Eisenhower has been approved by the Congress. Just as soon as the differences between the Senate and House versions are ironed out the bill will be submitted to the President for his signature. The new tax bill, which represents the first real revision of our tax laws, will go into effect next January.

Members of the Finance Committee pointed out during the debate that approximately 25 million Americans will benefit from the new tax law. The tax relief will extend to all classes of our people, including farmers, working parents, persons who must support children and families with children. Additional credits are given for medical costs, soil conservation work, charitable contributions, and other items. However, some higher taxes on corporations are extended.

The bill gave rise to considerable political debate, which, in my opinion, misrepresented the purposes and effects of the bill. As I told the Senate, it is ironic that those who have never given the people tax relief, who have only added taxes, should advance the argument that the bill does not give sufficient tax relief.

The new bill covers some 800 pages and is the culmination of many months of work by the Committees of Congress and the Treasury Department. The previous tax reductions were in income taxes, excise taxes, and the excess profits tax. These tax cuts reflect the tremendous savings which have been made by government spending and the increased efficiency of the government agencies. As savings can be increased, so will taxes be modified.
